Art. 1 - ESTABLISHMENT OF THE DOCTORAL COURSE IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT AND CLIMATE CHANGE

The Scuola Universitaria Superiore IUSS, Piazza della Vittoria n. 15 – 27100 Pavia (hereafter "the School"), hereby announces a Call for Applications to enroll in the 39th – XXXIX cycle of the National Doctoral Course in Sustainable Development and Climate Change (hereafter PhD-SDC) for the 2023/2024 academic year – Second Call

PhD Programme Coordinator: Professor Mario Martina – phd-sdc.coordinator@iusspavia.it

1.1 Course Description and Objectives

The Doctoral Course in Sustainable Development and Climate Change (PhD-SDC) has a duration of three years and aims to equip talented students with the skills to build a more resilient society – one that will be able to address and manage effectively the problems of climate change. A society capable of rethinking the processes of sustainable development, and the objectives of which are not aimed solely at economic growth. The course is focused on the interrelation of complex issues such as technological progress, availability of natural resources, migration, human rights, climate change, access to food and water and the quality of life of present and future generations.

The combined challenges of sustainability and climate change need to be firmly embedded in university education. Universities should aim to identify and create innovative projects going beyond a traditional, single-discipline approach, so that by effectively combining a variety of abilities, methods and communicative skills, society will be able to manage the present challenges.

The main objective of the course is to provide doctoral candidates with a high-level preparation by coordinating and integrating – in partnership with host universities – a diverse team of high-profile educators, who can offer a full spectrum of disciplinary areas, ranging from ecology, technology, economics and engineering to maths, philosophy, medicine and agriculture. PhD candidates will have the chance to propose effective means of achieving the 2030 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as defined by the United Nations.

The PhD programme offers six curricula, described in detail in the document "Research Topics". The six curricula are:

Managing Scarce Resources: Ethical, Social and Educational Profiles

|---|---|
| Reference Person: | Pirni Alberto (alberto.pirni@santannapisa.it) |
| Host University/Institute: | Scuola Superiore Sant'Anna - Pisa / Istituto di Diritto, Politica e Sviluppo |
| Research Keywords: | Ethics of Climate Change |
| | Water (usage and consumption) |
| | Scarce Resources Management |
| Reference ERCs: | SH5_10 Ethics and its applications; social philosophy |
| | SH7_6 Environmental and climate change, societal impact and policy |
| | SH1_12 Environmental economics; resource and energy economics; agricultural economics |
| Reference SDGs: | GOAL 6: Clean Water and Sanitation, GOAL 11: Sustainable Cities and Communities, GOAL 16: Peace and Justice Strong Institutions |

Description of the research topic

The research aims at addressing the ethical, social, and educational profiles of the so called "scarce resources" and their appropriate management. The fundamental focus will be devoted to the management of water. Accordingly, a specific attention will be dedicated to the public, agricultural and industrial usages of water, and the correlative priority settings. The comparative analysis, which could refer to the management of other fundamental scarce resources – such as (among others) land, forests, air, river basins and oceans, biodiversity – will be also welcomed. The expected research will benefit from the analysis of concrete case studies.

We encourage ambitious submissions relying on genuine transdisciplinarity and a plurality of approaches, including (just as preliminary exemplificatory list) ethical theories, political science, law sectors, environmental economics, and public and private management. Further relevant fields of research include the impact of climate change and the ethics of sustainability on wide and urban areas, the transition to agri-food and industrial sustainability, finally, the possibility of innovating contexts of living togetherness in urban and non-urban areas. The intergenerational justice approach will constitute the leading methodological focus for addressing innovative ethical models for the redistribution of costs and burdens deriving from the climate change in specific areas of the World, Europe, and, more specifically, in Italy. Comparative policy analysis will be also the key factors for addressing specific case studies, in cooperation with (all levels) institutional actors and international organizations operating on the same crucial sectors.

In the most comprehensive sense, successful projects are expected to contribute to contemporary ethical and theoretical-political debates related to sustainability, environmental ethics, theories of justice (including intergenerational) and global political theories, through a critical discussion of issues such as allocation of responsibilities, potential redistribution of benefits/disadvantages, mitigation of discrimination and inequalities resulting from climate change and over- and mis-uses of scarce resources, at local, national and supranational level.

Research team and environment

The research will be mainly carried out in the intellectually stimulating and highly engaging academic environment of the National PhD School in "Sustainable Development and Climate Change", and in the wider network of the scholars and institutions participating in the PhD Curriculum in 'Theories, Institutions and Culture', with specific reference to the Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies (Pisa – Italy). At the Sant'Anna School, the research will be developed within the Institute of Law, Politics and Development (DIRPOLIS). The Institute conducts innovative research in the fields of law, political science, moral and political philosophy. Its multidisciplinary approach allows for a comprehensive representation of complex legal, political, social and economic phenomena. Its manifold projects and activities on environmental-related issues, carried out within a cooperation network gathering a number of scholars from various European and non-European universities, promote high level scientific research in the field of climate change and sustainable development.

Due to the specificity of the project, the research path will include a secondment at the "AcquaNovara.VCO", a leading public enterprise in the water-services sector, based in Piedmont, Italy, that can serve as reference case-study, since it has been implementing from several years a wide and multifaceted strategy devoted to the strengthening of the profile of sustainable consumption of water, also by consolidating an interesting territorial stakeholders' network.

Suggested skills for this research topic

Openess towards interdisciplinary approaches, together with a solid competence in the social sciences area will be appreciated.
